

International Catholic Strategy Update

Second Quarter, 2020

International Portfolio Review

The Boston Common Catholic International Equity strategy returned +17.7% before fees, outperforming the Index. Strong stock selection in the Industrials sector was the largest driver of relative performance. Expectations for a green recovery in capital spending aided producers of energy-efficient equipment: Schneider, Daikin, and Atlas Copco. German electric forklift manufacturer Kion and British building products distributor Ferguson also had strong returns. Technology was a key contributor, driven by our overweight of semiconductors stocks, especially Infineon and ASML. Ongoing demand from remote work, ecommerce, and the reopening of key industrial segments helped semiconductor names as well as Japanese electronic component supplier TDK and machine vision company Keyence. Stock selection in the Financial Services sector also helped performance. Our holdings, especially Australian asset manager Macquarie and Dutch bank ING, bounced back from first quarter lows. Along with Europe, driven by many of the names mentioned above, the UK was a top regional contributor, due to both our underweight positioning and good stock picks. British winners included natural ingredient producer Croda, steam specialist Spirax-Sarco, and cardboard recycler DS Smith. Bike parts supplier Shimano and human resources technology provider Recruit helped drive strong stock selection in Japan. Additional top contributors included Deutsche Telekom and Belgian electric vehicle component supplier Umicore.

Defensive stock selection and our overweight positioning made Consumer Staples the largest detractor from performance. Household and personal care producers Kao and Essity and Japanese drugstore company Sundrug were relatively flat. Stock selection in Communication Services also weighed on returns. Japanese mobile operator NTT Docomo declined, Singapore Telecommunications reported disappointing earnings, and Swisscom was flat. Our underweight of the Materials sector was also a small detractor. Our underweight and stock selection made Asia Pacific the only regional detractor. Hong Kong-based AIA Group was affected by concerns about the city-state's future. Additional detractors included Japanese financial services provider Orix and Spanish utility Red Elctrica.

Portfolio Activity

Among our transactions this quarter, we purchased Barratt Developments, one of the largest housing developers in the UK with a best-in-class balance between green building and affordability. The company has net cash on its balance sheet and valuation looks compelling at 11x earnings and 1.1x book value. We also purchased Yamaha, a global leader in musical instruments and education programs. The company is the world's largest piano manufacturer, offering models for professionals and beginners alike, enabling broad artistic expression. Yamaha's digital products appeal to the modern marketplace and are helping improve profitability. Taking advantage of historically low valuations, we started a position in HDFC Bank, a leading Indian bank with an impressive record of risk management and profitable growth.

The bank is focused on retail and small business lending, including its microfinance initiatives that provide important access to credit and typically empower women entrepreneurs.

During the quarter we sold BMW due to our concern about the effects of a structural shift to electric vehicles, in which the company has demonstrated less leadership than expected. We also left our position in Standard Chartered, a UK-based bank with significant exposure to developing markets and trade finance. We had become concerned over its declining competitiveness in its key Asian markets, and redeployed funds towards financials with stronger fundamentals.
